My first experience with art history was as a senior in high school and I found it to be so boring that I swore I'd never take another class. As I entered Juniata as a freshman business major taking classes from Jim Donaldson, I remember seeing the Art of China class in the schedule book for the following year. Since I have always had a strong fascination with the Far East, I decided that Sandy McBride's class would fulfill a humanities requirement. However in order to take the class I had to take Karen Rosell's Survey of Western Art class in the fall. Let's just say from then on I was hooked. Karen was a fantastic professor who was so obviously interested and enthusiastic about what she was teaching and she had a genuine concern for the well-being of her students. Over the course of the next three years, not only did I continue taking art classes. I must say that writing my senior thesis paper for Karen was probably the most horrible academic experience of my life . . . then again, it was also the best! It was the first time someone had truly critiqued my writing style. While seeing the first few drafts covered with red ink drove me to tears, in the end I learned a lot about scholarly writing and came to respect Karen even more.

A wide variety of survey type classes were available while I was there covering every historical period from Ancient to Contemporary. I'm sure that since a new professor will be on board this coming fall, the department will continue to grow, and hopefully attract even more students. I believe that it's important for students to be aware of art and how it shapes, and has shaped, the world around us. The classes I took while a student at Juniata provided me with an insight into a subject I once found meaningless and perhaps even mundane.

To the Editor:

What has happened to our wonderful alumni magazine? Why does every article read like it's a press release from the publicity office? Probably because it is. It seems to me that there should be a difference between an alumni magazine article and a press release. A press release is for the general public, to inform them of the existence of Juniata College and how wonderful it is. The alumni magazine goes to our alumni, who already know about Juniata College and how wonderful it is. They want to know what is REALLY going on here, not some glossy propaganda designed to snow the general public. How about some real reporting? There ARE some problems at Juniata. Why not report on them, and what is being done about them, and whether the people affected by the problems are satisfied with these measures? There ARE some controversies here, issues that have ardent supporters on both sides. Why not have some debates in the pages of the magazine? Perhaps that would inspire some of alumni to chime in with their own opinions. I think Juniata alumni deserve a magazine that strives to report the truth, not what the publicity people want them to hear. I hope future issues will contain less pablum and more real articles.

By the way, it seems to me that I used to get four issues a year, and that the information in it was relatively timely. The last issue arrived in the summer of 1996, and reported several meetings I attended in June. In fact, these meeting were attended in June of 1995! Why are we reading year-old information in the alumni magazine? If we are going to get press releases, can they at least be timely?

Sincerely,

I. David Reingold Professor of Chemistry

Editor's Note: We would like to hear from more of our readers on this and other issues, thoughts and concerns relating to Juniata College.

EDITOR'S NOTES

Dear alumni and friends of Juniata,

This issue is the first in a series of three that will focus on an academic department. Each feature story will explore current issues impacting curriculum, teaching, and the changes taking place within a department.

An obvious choice for our first issue was Juniata's art department which has recently undergone many changes as the result of an academic review. I am sure you will agree that these changes have made the department stronger and more attractive to new students. First, we investigate the significance of an art program in a liberal arts education. Second, and of broader perspective, is how art programs throughout our country are plagued with questions of establishing appropriate levels of funding within an institution.

Aside from this, the art department is perhaps my "pet" department. I feel connected to Juniata art graduates through my own undergraduate degree in graphic design. I know I have benefited in both my personal and professional life through the study of art. My love of art history, which was born as an undergraduate, has given me purpose to explore new cultures and the ability to understand an artist's message. In addition, my training as an artist helped me secure my first job as an illustrator at General Motors. It has developed in me a creative mind, which is of great value in any occupation. However, I am aware that as an art major my story isn't extraordinarily unique.

This brings me to a point about Juniata's art department that I find phenomenal and worthy of sharing with all who will listen. At Juniata you can find chemistry, geology, business and pre-med students influenced and enlightened by the arts. This is something of which to take note. And, I am confident after speaking with both art and science POEs that the arts at Juniata have contributed to their personal success and the completeness of their education.

I hope you enjoy the next few issues of your alumni bulletin. I would love to hear from those of you with exciting information or unique career experiences to include in the upcoming issues.

Sincerely

Stophanie Motochenbesher

IT HAPPENS HIRL A CONTROLL A

ere classrooms are lit by red lights, track lights and the glow of an anagama kiln. Blackboards are replaced with eight foot screens designed to project art, CRT screens capable of displaying millions of colors, and a potter's wheel spinning clay into art. Yet the most significant difference in the classroom is that the text-book lies within the soul of each individual student.

To become artists, students must tap their inner thoughts or souls and make a conscious effort to arrange colors, forms, movements or other elements in a manner that affects the sense of beauty. Our ability to understand what an artist has done is like finding a key to another person's soul. In the words of Pablo Picasso, "....in the end when the work is there, the painter has already gone." Picasso's words reflect the essence of Juniata's art department.

Juniata's art department places top priority on teaching students to communicate. "Our students learn by making, appreciating, and analyzing art works," said Karen Rosell, professor of art and department chair (karen.rosell@juniata.edu). "Art reflects not only the stylistic principles of an era, but also those human values and cultures which served as inspiration. My art history courses rely heavily on discussion rather than lecture so that, through close examination of paintings, sculptures, and architectural monuments, students discover the ways by which art reveals meaning. My course objectives emphasize learning to think analytically and critically, to clearly articulate ideas in speaking and in writing, and the ability to synthesize information."

"Our entire world is framed by architecture and urban design and filled with visual media — all of which is shaped by artists," Phillip Earenfight, Juniata's new art professor said. (phillip.earenfight@juniata.edu) "Regardless of your field of study, to more fully interact with society, one must develop the skills to understand the meaning and place of art in our culture."

The Department of Art includes studies in studio fine arts, art history and the newly created program of arts management.

The focus of the studio fine arts program is to teach students to express and communicate their own values and ideas. Students in this area of study are exposed to the technical and creative means of drawing, painting, photography, ceramics and computer graphics. "As the faculty we are here to help polish a student's technical skill or crafts-manship while encouraging the abilities of self expression and problem solving," said Sandy McBride, professor of art (sandy. mcbride@juniata.edu).

"We have many goals set for our studio art program. The more universal ones that we are trying to accomplish are to help the student become more confident in the use of their imagination, be able to find unity in complex forms and become more responsive to the design possibilities found in nature," McBride said.

He explains, "Much of education is directed towards preparation for a career and we find it important to choose our careers carefully because we define ourselves in terms of what we do. However, as possessors of human minds and emotions, we owe it to ourselves to include in the definition of ourselves what we think about and the feelings we have developed as a result of our life's experiences. Thoughts and feelings are just as influential and directive in our lives as the training we receive for a given career."

"The more we train ourselves to be sensitive to our thoughts and feelings, the richer our life's experiences will be. Learning to make visual art is valuable in this respect. It is an alternative form of language that can be used to record and express life's experiences. Art training provides an opportunity to explore the elements that make up a work of art and the manner in which those elements contribute to the creative expression of an idea," concludes McBride.

Karen Rosell, professor of art, stands ready for her students in the college's newly equipped art history auditorium.

In 1994 the art department began a process known at Juniata as the periodic program review, involving a self-study, a peer study, and an alumni evaluation. The whole process spans two years and results in a document that suggests a strategic direction, a five-year plan, and concludes with a "good faith commitment" negotiated with Provost Robert Hatala and approved by President Robert Neff.

The art department received its good faith commitment in the fall of 1995. The review identified critical areas within the department that needed further development and called into question the ability to maintain a sound academic art program unless actions were taken. The board of trustees and administration took the recommendations seriously. As a result, students and faculty are seeing facility improvements, the addition of another art historian to the faculty, and the installation of new equipment.

Last fall, with funds provided by the McCune Foundation Grant, the department was able to install a fully equipped computer graphics art studio strictly designed for teaching computer art. "It was exciting to place the tools used by today's commercial artist in the hands of our art students," said McBride. The lab consists of ten MAC computers running the latest software used by illustrators, photographers, graphic artists, and animators. McBride explained that students are not only creating art with these tools, they are learning about the technology. "The computer art classes are quickly becoming a favorite of our students. They know that understanding how to create digital images is a required skill of today's commercial artist."

The lower level of Shoemaker Galleries has proven to be an ideal setting for the lab. The room was adapted for the computer equipment with the installation of carpet, track lighting, and ergonomically correct computer desks. "Students love the new equipment and are always anxious for class to start. It's not uncommon to find them outside the door waiting for class to begin," he said.

Changes are already taking place within the art history program. The academic review acknowledged the department's strength in modern Western Art time periods, but noted that with additional faculty expertise in Ancient through Medieval eras, an introductory course in Non Western Arts, and an arts management program, the department would be even stronger. This recommendation was acted upon with the recent addition of Phillip Earenfight to the faculty. "Phillip is a terrific compliment to our department. He brings enthusiasm and energy, as well as expertise in art history and arts management. We are very excited about having him join us," said Rosell.

However this won't be the only visible change returning students will see within the art history program. Over the summer a tiered room in Good Hall was renovated and equipped with dual slide projectors, a double-wide electronic screen, overhead incandescent lighting, a computer podium, soundproofing, and theater seating, all designed specifically for art history classes. This is also a much welcomed improvement and will provide optimum conditions for viewing slides of art works. "It is in the classroom where it all happens. This is where students quite often see and understand for the very first time what art is all about. It is so thrilling to watch them lean forward in their seats, totally absorbed in discussions, listening to one another and to me. It's like seeing a light go on, and once that happens they always want to know more," remarked Rosell.

Grettel Wentling a 1994 graduate who is currently a Grettel Wentling a 1994 graduate who is currently a third year medical student at Mayo Medical School recalls the impact the art history program had on her as "opening a new world". "When I came to medical school I found that most of my classmates had only studied the sciences. I felt more well-rounded because of my studies in art history. If I had not studied art history at Juniata I probably would have never stepped foot into a museum. Today, I take advantage of every chance I can to visit museums and special exhibits." she said.

In addition to making suggestions to upgrade facilities and utilize new technology, the participants in the academic review are asked to look for opportunities using current strengths or resources within a department, or program. The review identified Juniata's strength in art history and the opportunity for students to gain 'hands-on' experience with Shoemaker Gallery. The review recommended that Juniata capitalize on these strengths and develop a new program in arts management, as mentioned above.

"Some of our undergraduates have already had remarkable success entering the arts management field. For example, Savannah Schroll a junior with a POE in art history, was able to secure an impressive internship last spring semester at a gallery traditionally known to accept only graduate students," said Rosell. Savannah worked at the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., and she believes Juniata's art history program has been crucial to her success.

"My experience at Juniata gave me the practical skills and knowledge to think independently. The classes taught me to analyze works of art which gave me the skills helpful in my work as a research assistant at the National Gallery in Washington, D. C.," said Schroll. The success of Juniata students in the real world indicates not only a seal of approval on the quality of a Juniata art education but also the value and rare commodity of an undergraduate student with experience in managing a gallery like Shoemaker.

Rosell believes that by developing a formal arts management program Juniata will have the means to recruit students like Savannah who are looking for the ability to mix a practical career with their love of the line arts.

"The changes within the art department may soon be felt campus-wide as we continue to be a department that extends its reach beyond art students. It is an exciting time," said Rosell.

Earenfight Joins Staff

tudents returning to the Juniata College community for the fall semester will find expanded offerings in non-western art and arts management courses as part of broadening curricular offerings in art history.

The new courses will be offered by Juniata's new instructor in art history, Phillip J. Earenfight. Earenfight, who is currently a doctoral candidate in art history at Rutgers University, will teach Survey of Non-Western Art and Arts Management I in addition to serving as the director of the Shoemaker Galleries.

"My main interest in Juniata was in the opportunity to practice in the related areas of art history and art administration," Earenfight said. "At most colleges these are considered two different departments, but I like the idea of combining those art disciplines."

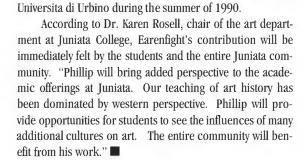

"There are distinctive skills required in putting together an art exhibit, and my position gives me the opportunity to be involved on several levels. In creating exhibits, you draw upon art history. You incorporate a historical perspective into the exhibit to develop a theme. Organizing the exhibit, you rely more on administrative skills. Designing the exhibit, you rely on visual skills to guarantee cohesiveness. I will be involved in all these areas."

In addition to his doctoral work Earenfight was the associate curator of collection and exhibitions at Johnson and Johnson in New Brunswick, New Jersey. In that capacity he was responsible for the permanent collection of over 2,000 contemporary works in all media, designing and installing traveling exhibitions, coordinating the promotion of the exhibitions, and directing the undergraduate intern curatorial training program.

Earenfight is a 1985 graduate of the University of Washington where he received his bachelor of arts degree in art history. He received a master's degree in art history in 1990 from Rutgers University where he presented a master's thesis titled "Observations on Duccio's Maesta Passion Cycle."

Earenfight's teaching experience includes serving in adjunct professor roles in art history at Lafayette College from 1993 to 1994, Middlesex County College from 1992

Phillip J. Earenfight to 1993, Kean College from 1989 to 1993 and Italy's

The ARTS Benefit the Community

For every $1 spent on the arts, more than $4 are generated through restaurant, hotel, retail, transportation, parking, revenues, etc.

The arts are a key factor in an individual's decision about where to work and live.

The arts are a factor considered by business when it evaluates a new location.

The arts revitalize neighborhoods and increase the value of commercial and residential real estate.

The arts spark civic pride which leads to safe and better maintained communities.

The arts attract tourism which generates increased spending and tax revenues.

The ARTS Positively Impact Academic Performance

Studies indicate that including the arts in education enhances a child's ability to:

Develop better verbal and non-verbal communication skills

Develop conceptual skills

Develop problem solving skills

Understand and appreciate different cultures

Enjoy the arts, insuring future audiences

Verbal and math SAT scores of students who take arts courses are higher than the scores of those who do not take arts courses

(DATA — ON Music Education, Music Educators National Conferences, Reston, Virginia, 1990)

Students who study the arts perform 30% better in basic academic skills than those who do not study the arts. They also have better standardized reading and math test scores and demonstrate greater creativity, better word fluency and communication skills.

(Studies conducted in Columbus, Ohio schools, the University of Southern California, Birmingham and Blackpool, England and Hungary as reported in California School Boards, September 1981.)

Test scores in reading, vocabulary and writing have doubled at Anza High School in Los Angeles after the school's three year participation in the Getty Center's "Discipline Based Arts Education" program. The school now has the highest test scores in its district.

Graduates: "Follow the path of your heart"

wo hundred eighteen seniors were awarded bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees during ceremonies marking Juniata College's 117th commencement. The afternoon ceremonies, before 1800 parents, friends, trustees, faculty members and staff, were highlighted by the unusual address presented to the graduates by Grammy winner Paul Winter. Mr. Winter who founded the Paul Winter Consort, spoke and performed prior to receiving an honorary doctor of humane letters degree in recognition of his valuable contributions in music and ecological consciousness raising.

In presenting Mr. Winter for the honorary degree, Dr. Andrew Murray, professor of peace and conflict studies and director of the Baker Institute at Juniata, said, "Paul Winter has forged a vision of music that assembles life: all of life. In his richly ornamented universe, the smoky Chicago back street "amen" of Cannonball Adderly, the uptown red hot and cool sophistication of Stan Getz, the plaintive cry of the wolf and the tender melody of the wren are all equally at home."

"From his youthful days of Pennsylvania oompah to sojourns in canyon and cathedral, he has traversed an ever expanding musical dominion. In defining his elegant and eclectic style, he has not so much pushed the boundaries out to protect his territory as he has opened his arms to embrace cultures and creatures of every dimension. His horn resonates with the primal breath of creation and in the magnificent complexity and searing simplicity of his music, this Earth, this wonderful, life-giving Earth, finds her voice."

In his commencement address Mr. Winter recalled for the graduates his personal life journey. "A few years ago," he said, "I wove some of my dreams and dedications into a Mission Statement, and I'd like to read it to you.

The mission of my lifework is to create and disseminate timeless universal music for the Whole Earth, celebrating the miracle of life, the beauty of the Earth (and all beings) and our interrelationship with the entire community of life, exploring and demonstrating how our faculty of listening and our natural creative impulse toward expression, will contribute to the maturation of the human species, and the reinvention of the human as a dimension of the emergent universe.

I didn't always have this kind of mission," the speaker admitted. "Early on, I was just drawn to soulful sounds - of the instruments in the orchestras, dance bands and jazz groups I heard growing up in Altoona. Music was something we did, as a part of the community. I lived music, but I never imagined it as my life's work. There were no models then for a path in music - outside art-music or entertainment. I figured I should do something useful - like law school. But I had 2 lucky breaks. - my college jazz sextet won an intercollegiate jazz festival, and with it a recording contract with Columbia Records; and then our sextet was offered a 23-country tour of Latin America by the State Department. I decided to take off a year before law school... and, I've been chasing this muse ever since.

"In 1968 there was another turning point for me: I heard for the first time the songs of the humpback whales," he said. "I was so moved by the beauty of their voices, and by the fact that they sing these long complicated patterns and then repeat them, verbatim, continually through an entire season, and also by the fact that whales were rapidly being exterminated by a whaling industry that used whales for products that could easily be substituted with substances found on land. I'd like to have you hear the voice of the whale as I did then," he said, "and I'll play along with it a bit." The Grammy award winning artist began a recording of the haunting sounds of whales as he played melody on the saxophone.

"The whales opened for me the door to the entire symphony of the earth," Winter noted, "and soon thereafter I heard the voices of the wolves. Among the lessons I learned from these creatures is that they expanded my sense of community, a sense of being part of a larger community than just the human...that all the species comprise one vast life-family. Of the 30 million species of life on earth, we are the youngest species - we are perhaps barely in our adolescence - and we are presently behaving like juvenile delinquents - within the entire community of life.

Amy Heptner and Jennifer Dean make the final adjustments to their caps and gowns before the 1996 Commencement ceremonies.

"One thing we need to grow in is humility. Maturation is the goal, and reverence for our elders - wild creatures and indigenous cultures - is one place to begin. We're all part of this great web, and music ties it together.

"I speak of 'the beauty of the Earth' in my Mission Statement. The Russian novelist Dostoevsky said something that has become one of my life's mandates. He said: 'Beauty will save the world.' When I repeated this to our good friend, the poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, he said, 'Yes, but who will save beauty?'

"This I take on as my job," Winter asserted, "and maybe it will be yours as well.

"If you are lucky enough to be able to follow the path of your heart and devote yourself to work and service that you love," he said, "then you'll have a true livelihood, rather than a deadlihood. The deepest wisdom on this subject seems to be summed up in a simple prescription: 'Follow your heart.'

"Each of us has a totally unique song, a unique offering for the world. And you are the very best, in the entire world, at doing your song. Therefore, you have absolutely no competition. And I believe that what the world wants, what the growing unfurling journey of the universe wants, is your unique song, as totally full-tilt as you can offer it. And in this way we each contribute to the growing up of our young species.

"Finally, a word about timing: don't worry too much about how things unfold, and when — don't be too impatient with yourself. It doesn't matter when you achieve your dreams, as long as you keep the aspirations alive in your heart.

"As the world continues to change faster and faster," Winter concluded, "the challenges you will face may very well be new to the human experience. As one old folk singer said: 'The future ain't what it used to be...But then it never was.'

"In closing I want to play a song from my favorite composer, J.S. Bach, along with one of the great voices of earth's symphony, the wood thrush. I dedicate this music to you, the graduates, in celebration of this milestone in your lives. May your path be filled with song."

Honorary Degree Presented to Thai Businessman

s part of the 1996 commencement program held Sunday, May 12, at Juniata College, noted Thai businessman and entrepreneur Chumpol Phornprapha was presented the honorary degree doctor of education.

In presenting Dr. Chumpol for the degree, Dr. Ronald Cherry, professor of economics and business administration, noted Juniata's commitment to an international perspective. "The time in which we live is commonly seen as the time of the global village or the global neighborhood. Words, images, technology, capital, goods and services and people criss-cross the time zones of the world as never before, more frequently and more quickly. Institutions of all sorts are alive with the dynamic results of this interaction and Juniata College is no exception.

"Thirty-five years ago the world was a smaller, more fragmented place," Dr. Cherry said. "Juniata had no formal international mission or policy. But even then there were international stirrings: faculty travel and study abroad, occasional lectures from what we then thought of as 'distant lands,' and the presence of a small number of international students. Among the latter was a young man from Thailand....

"This young man was Chumpol Phornprapha, who returned to his home-land after leaving Juniata in the 1960s and started his career in business.... Chumpol Phornprapha returns to his alma mater today, graced by praise, honors and awards from social, business and academic organizations, societies and institutions including decorations from the king of Thailand. He returns today, however, not for his outstanding performance and success in business, which is truly global and truly merited, but because of his lifetime passion for and devotion to education, especially his consuming energy for higher education in Thailand and the United States."

Dr. Cherry concluded by saying, "Today we are honored by Chumpol Phornprapha's presence and, in recognizing his achievements in and contributions to institutions of both business and education, we also acknowledge our continuing obligation to prepare students for this global village."

Chumpol Phornprapha is a highly-recognized businessman and entrepreneur in Thailand. His reputation is known within both business and education communities.

He serves as the chairman of the S.P. International Group, a company active in real estate development and investment, manufacturing and distribution of industrial and agricultural products, computer software and high-technology products, retailing of motorcycles, and foreign investment.

Under Dr. Chumpol's direction and leadership, the group's flagship company, S.P. International Co., Ltd., has become one of Thailand's top 40 companies. His company continues to expand and grow with the boom of Thailand's economy and the country's impact in the region as the most advanced developing country in Asia.

Many of his interests in and contributions to higher education are focused on improving the understanding of people and cultures through education. He serves as council member at several prominent universities in Thailand including Chiengmai University and Yonok College.

Dr. Chumpol is the chairman of Silapakorn University council and chairman of Khon Kaen University board of trustees and was selected for the board of trustees at Babson College, the alma mater of two of his children, in 1994.

Dr. Chumpol has been recognized for his major contribution to Yonok College where the School of Business Administration and the main building carry his name. The awards which represent his achievements include the "Sang Ngern Award" for business public relations, the "1989 Industrialist of the Year" and "1988 Outstanding Person of the Year" - Business-Academic category.

Distinguished Teaching Awards

hree Juniata College faculty members were honored with distinguished teaching awards during the college's 117th commencement ceremonies.

Honored for their work at the college were William L. Hofelt, associate professor of English; Dr. Kim M. Richardson, professor of education; and Dr. Celia Cook-Huffman, assistant professor of peace studies.

Hofelt received the Beachley Award for Distinguished Teaching, Richardson received the Beachley Award for Academic Service, and Cook-Huffman received the Junior Faculty Award.

The Beachley Awards were established by Donovan R. Beachley Sr., a graduate of Juniata in 1921 and an emeritus member of the Board of Trustees; Donovan R. Beachley Jr., a member of the class of 1947, and a current member of the Board of Trustees; and Mrs. Donovan R. Beachley Jr., all of Hagerstown, Md.

The Beachley Award for Distinguished Teaching provides a $2,500 stipend to a professor who contributes to the development of the nominee's department and the college as a whole. Teaching effectiveness, scholarly activities, service beyond the campus, and length of service to the college are also important factors.

Hofelt joined the Juniata College faculty in 1966 after graduating from the college with honors in 1965. He received his M.A. from the University of Rochester in 1967.

Hofelt's distinguished teaching career is highlighted by the service that he has provided his students as well as enhancing the English department through the creation and development of the Juniata Writing Center. He was the director of composition at Juniata, and he has been instrumental in assisting young alumni with their writing and publishing careers. He received a grant to develop a writers-in-residency program from the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Writing Fellows Program, in conjunction with the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Program. He founded the Juniata Writing Center to enable all students to improve their writing skills through a structured tutorial system.

The Beachley Award for Academic Service also provides a $2,500 stipend. The award is made to a professor showing outstanding service to students through advising, counseling, or development of student-related activities, and outstanding service to the college through curriculum or department development, committee activities, or college-wide activities.

Richardson joined the Juniata College faculty in 1979. She received her B.A. from Duke University in 1969 and went on to earn an M.S. from Old Dominion University in 1973 and a Ph.D. from Temple University in 1981.

Overall, Richardson has been a teacher for 26 years, which includes work as an elementary school teacher, an educational consultant, a graduate assistant, a college instructor at Old Dominion and Temple, and a resident director in England and China. At Juniata, she has served as an associate professor, professor, department chair, the Brethren Colleges Abroad director, the associate dean of academic affairs, and the director of international programs.

At Juniata, she has taught courses in corrective reading, developmental reading, women's studies, language arts and children's literature. In addition, she supervises elementary student teachers.

Richardson has been recognized for her academic service throughout her teaching career. In addition to the 1996 Beachley Award for Academic Service, she was honored by the Delta Sigma Lambda Sorority of Old Dominion University as the "Teacher of the Year" in 1975, and, in 1983, she received the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching.

Nominations for the Beachley awards are received from students, faculty, administrative personnel, alumni, and trustees. The final selections are made by the college president, the dean of academic affairs, the student government president, and the three most recent recipients of the award.

The Junior Faculty Award provides a $500 stipend to the recipient. Selection criteria include contribution to the total educational effort of the college and outstanding work by a junior faculty member who has served the college for seven or fewer years.

With a bachelor of arts degree in peace studies and conflict resolution from Manchester College, a master's degree in peace studies from the University of Notre Dame, and a Ph.D. from Syracuse University, Cook-Huffman came to Juniata College in 1990. She has become a valuable resource for the college and the community, teaching mediation and conflict resolution to high school teachers and church leaders, and providing community mediation services under the auspices of the Baker Institute.

The Junior Faculty Award recipient is selected by the college president, who is assisted by a faculty committee.

1996 Alumni Awards

he Alumni Association of Juniata College selected Sam Brumbaugh '54, as the recipient of the 1996 Alumni Service Award and Ronald Smelser '64, as the recipient of the 1996 Alumni Achievement Award. The awards were presented during Alumni Weekend activities held this summer at the college.

The Alumni Service Award is presented to a Juniata graduate who has distinguished himself in service to Juniata College.

F. Samuel Brumbaugh was presented with the award by Sharon C. Faulkner '69, president of the Juniata College Alumni Association. Ms. Faulkner, in presenting the award, cited Mr. Brumbaugh's devotion to his alma mater. "The Alumni Service Award is presented to you in acknowledgment of your extensive gifts of time and energy. You have worked tirelessly to spread the word about Juniata to countless prospective students. Many of our present and future alumni are Juniatians because of your efforts," she said.

Mr. Brumbaugh is the president of the Bangor Cork Company, Inc. of Pen Argyl, Pa.. He has been actively involved with his alma mater as an alumni club volunteer, Juniata Admission Volunteer, and as a reunion class coordinator. He currently serves as a member of the Board of Trustees, a post which he has held since 1987.

The Alumni Achievement Award is presented to an alumnus who has distinguished himself over a period of years and who has achieved a pinnacle position in his chosen profession.

Ronald M. Smelser was presented the award by Ms. Faulkner. In presenting the award, Ms. Faulkner said, "This award is presented to you in recognition of your noteworthy career in higher education and history. Your achievements as an alumnus of Juniata College reflect the value of a liberal arts education and enhance the reputation of the institution."

Mr. Smelser is currently a professor of German history at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. The University of Utah has recognized his teaching abilities on three occasions naming him outstanding teacher.

"You have not only been an exemplary teacher, you are an expert in the field of modern German history and a noted international authority on Nazi Germany and the Holocaust. Your accomplishments reveal a quality of performance worthy of recognition. It is both an honor and a pleasure to present you with this citation of achievement by the direction of the Alumni Council."

Sbaron Faulkner '69 and President Robert Neff present Samuel Brumbaugh, '54 with the 1996 Alumni Service Award.

Sharon Faulkner '69 and President Robert Neff present Ronald M. Smelser, '64 with the 1996 Alumni Achievement Award.

New Alumni Council President

onald Seiler of Souderton assumed the presidency of the Alumni Association of Juniata College in May. Sharon(Cramer) Faulkner, outgoing president and 1969 graduate of Juniata, turned the post over to Seiler with the ceremonial gavel passing at the association's 1996 annual meeting.

Mr. Seiler, a 1977 graduate of Juniata, holds a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. He also received a masters of arts degree in natural science from West Chester (Pa.) University in 1982.

A former high school chemistry teacher, Seiler now owns and operates Computer Office Training in Lansdale, Pa. He is a long-time active alumnus, serving as reunion coordinator, attending area alumni events, and serving on the Alumni Council since 1993. He has contributed substantially to the work of the Alumni Council communications, enrollment, and career networking focus groups.

In addition, the following members of the alumni association have been appointed as council members at large: Jack C. Buckle '48 of Williamsport, Pa.; Nathaniel "Ned" E. Ehrlich '80 of Philadelphia, Pa.; Tracy (Stough) Grajewski '86 of Pennsburg, Pa.; Michael S. Lehman '94 of Columbia, Pa.; Linda (Kerr) Miller '60 of Charleston, Il.; Carole (Climer) Molder '68 of Milbrae, Ca; and Gail (Zimmerman) Wills '78 of West Grove, Pa.

Janine (Everhart) Katonah '69 of Oak Park, II., has been appointed alumni council representative to the Juniata College board of trustees and James R. Tufano '62 of Ambler, Pa., was named vice president of the association. ■

Sharon Faulkner, outgoing president, passes the alumni council gavel to Ronald Seiler at the association's annual meeting.

THE JUNIATA FUND

Q. What is The Juniata Fund?

A. The Juniata Fund is the name for the annual campaign that raises money from alumni and friends of the College. The funds are used where the need is greatest within Juniata.

Q. Is The Juniata Fund something new?

A. Juniata has been asking its alumni and friends to consider an annual gift to the College since the early part of this century. It has previously been called The 100 Club and The Annual Support Fund.

Q. What is the goal of The Juniata Fund?

A. The goal of The Juniata Fund is to provide support to defray a variety of costs associated with providing students a first-rate liberal arts education. To achieve this, the 1995-96 Juniata Fund hopes to raise $1 million. Every Juniatian will be asked to contribute toward this goal by making their annual contribution to the College.

Q. How are gifts to The Juniata Fund used? Do they really make a difference?

A. For the foreseeable future, the priority of The Juniata Fund is to supplement the student financial aid program to ensure access to Juniata for students. The Juniata Fund also provides support for the Beeghly Library, student services, academic departments, and athletics by filling the gaps of budget limitations to purchase the tools necessary for an excellent education.

Q. How can I participate in The Juniata Fund?

A. You will periodically receive information in the mail explaining the accomplishments of The Juniata Fund, or you will receive a telephone call from a Juniata student. Either way, you will be given the opportunity to make your gift to promote excellence at Juniata.

$\mathbf{Q}$ . If I make a contribution will I still receive additional mailings or phone calls?

A.Once you make a gift to The Juniata Fund, you will not receive another Juniata Fund solicitation until the following year (fund year runs from July 1 to June 30 to coincide with the academic year). Therefore, a gift in the fall is a great advantage for both the donor and the College.

O. Why should I make a gift to The Juniata Fund? What about tuition?

A. Tuition does not cover the entire cost of a Juniata education; a balance of over $5,000 per student is made up through gifts to The Juniata Fund, grants, endowment income, and services. Every student at Juniata is the beneficiary of the loyal support of alumni, friends, and parents.

Q. How many alumni contribute to The Juniata Fund?

A. Juniata is proud to have loyal and generous alumni. On average, over 43% of the 10,000 men and women who call themselves Juniatians contribute annually to The Juniata Fund.

Alumni Liaison Bids Fond Farewell

t has taken me 15 years to see the top of my desk, and as I clear away the last few folders and paper work, I see that it reflects many fond memories. I came to Juniata College in 1981. In the first week I wrote a note saying, "How could I be so fortunate to be at this place at this time?"—my first office at Juniata College. I had come through the volunteer chairs and now I would be finding volunteers and keeping alumni connected by planning and implementing alumni programs.

But it wasn't the programs that made my life here meaningful and kept me here through thick and thin. It was you, the alumni, who enriched my life as I listened to your individual stories, learned what was important for you and heard about how you used your Juniata education to make a difference wherever you are.

On with the desk project — this glass apple has been on my desk for a long time. It was a gift from a support staff person. I drove support staff crazy-- probably went through about eight people before I found someone who would put up with staying long hours, endorse my wild and crazy ideas and even think of some herself. We put together the choir reunion-here is the cassette from that concert. I play it often in my car. It was even played on an alumni tour in Germany. Now I take down the framed back of a mountain day tee shirt given to me by the members of the Class of '57. Those alumni mountain days were a good way to bring back memories in a relaxed setting.

Here are some maps used to find my way across the country through all kinds of weather-- maps of California, Oregon, Washington, Illinois, Florida, New England and then some. You alumni have moved everywhere in the world. Of course, half of you are still in Pennsylvania and that's where most events were held.

Just picked up some old bulletins and found a picture of a clown with Bill Alexander '66-- I was surprised! Clowning was one of my early activities and later the clown in me came back to kick off the Transformation Campaign.

These were rewarding and challenging years. You have been a great group to serve and I will miss you. May we all continue to look at our alma mater with fondness and stay connected by supporting programs, volunteering, having fun together and continuing our financial support so that generation after generation will have the benefit of a Juniata education.

Dorothy Lehman Hershberger '50

DAVID SOWELL, (david.sow-ell@juniata.edu) associate professor of history, delivered a lecture, "Medical Systems and Social Conflict: Healing, Culture, and Power in Nineteenth-Century Colombia," to the Center for the Study of Science in Society, Virginia Technological University, in November.

He will serve on the dissertation committee of Diana Obregon Villers, who is working on the construction of Hansen's disease in Colombia.

In December, he participated in a one-day reunion of the NEH seminar group on the social history of medicine, which gave him the chance to return to the New York Public Library for more research.

Sowell's 1989 article "The 1893 bogotazo: Artisans and Public Violence in Late Nineteenth Century Bogotá," has been included in "Riots in the Cities: Popular Politics and the Urban Poor in Latin America, 1765-1910," ed. by Sylvia Marina Arrom and Servando Ortoll.

Sowell delivered a paper, "Patterns of Popular Protests and Working Class Politics in Bogotá," to the XVII Annual Conference of the Middle Atlantic Council on Latin American Studies at Bucknell University on March 30.

Former Juniata College president FREDERICK BINDER'S book titled "James Buchanan and the American Empire," has been selected by Choice as one of the Outstanding Academic Books for 1995. Choice is the official review publication of the Association of College and Research Libraries, division of the American Library Association. About 10 percent of the books reviewed in Choice are selected each year to receive this honor.

EI-ICHIRO OCHIAI, (ochiai@juniata.edu) professor of chemistry, had an essay: "Summer and Winter in Sweden" published recently in Gitoh, No. 1/2, p. 15-21 (1996) and an article titled "Japanese SAT" published in Mathematics Teachers, 89 (no. 2), p. 150-151 (1996).

Ochiai had an article: "CO, N2, NO, O2: Their Bioinorganic Chemistry -Principles and Applications in Bioinorganic Chemistry-VⅢ" published recently in J. Chem. Ed., 73, 130-134 (1996). Ei Ichiro Ochiai is a member of a team including Makishima, S.; Hirai, H.; Toshima, N.; Ida, T.; and Gotoh, Y., who recently published the following papers: (1) "Pattern Dynamics. Macrodynamical Approach to Nonlinear Problems Including Life, Mind, Thought, etc. Part IV. Quartet and Sextet Logic as Guiding Principles to Creating Technology Connected with Life," J. The Faculty of Engineering, The University of Tokyo (B) XLIII, No., 13-34 (1995); (2) "Pattern Dynamics. Macrodynamical Approach to Nonlinear Problems Including Life, Mind, Thoughts, etc. Part V. Pattern-dynamical Mechanism for "What are thinking, Mind and Consciousness": Establishment of Mental Biology," J. The Faculty of Engineering, The University of Tokyo (B) XLIII, No. 2, 103-134 (1995): (3) "Summarized Review of Pattern Dynamics up to Present, Making Clear Collectively 36 Creative Concepts Underlying, and Expecting Further Extension to More Difficult Problems Connected with Life," J. The Faculty of Engineering, The University of Tokyo (B) XLIII, No. 2, 135-171 (1995).

KAREN J. ROSELL.

(karen.rosell@juniata.edu) professor and chair of the art department, attended the "School of Visual Arts Ninth Annual National Conference on Liberal Arts and the Education of Artists," October 18-20, 1995. While there, she chaired a session on Curriculum Issues and presented a paper titled, "Engaging Students in Art History: Active Learning vs. Passive Listening."

An article by DONALD DURNBAUGH, campus archivist, was published in the book "From Prejudice to Destruction in the Shadow of Auschwitz" (Münster, 1995), edited by G. Jan Colijn and Marcia S. Littell. It includes selected papers from the conference "Remembering the Future II" held in Berlin, in March, 1994.

BRIEFS

HENRY THURSTON-GRISWOLD. (thurston@iuniata.edu) associate professor of Spanish, has been certified as an oral proficiency tester in Spanish by the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages. He is one of three foreign language professionals currently certified in Spanish in the state of Pennsylvania. In April, he will present a paper titled "Del sentimiento trágico de la vida en dos Sonatas de Valle-Inclán" at the 49th Annual Kentucky Foreign Language Conference. He also recently had an article titled "La temática regeneracionista del Morsamor de Juan Valera" published in Cincinnati Romance Review, 15, pp. 35-40 (1996).

KEITH MANN, (keith.mann-@juniata.edu) associate professor of paleontology, edited a book that was published in December: "Graphic Correlation: the Method and its Application," Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists Special Publication #53, 268p. An international group of scientists from academia, industry, and government contributed to the volume. Scientists have already cited the book and papers within the book in a new textbook and the professional, peer-reviewed literature.

MONTY MCADOO, (monty-mcadoo@juniata.edu) reference librarian instructor, and BOB HACKLEY, (Bob.hackley@juniata.edu) public services librarian instructor, recently attended the 11th annual "Computers in Libraries Conference" in Arlington, Va. The conference explored a variety of topics including Internet training and usage, planning for and implementing information technologies in a library, and trends in electronic information products and services.

On March 14, JOHN MUMFORD, (john.mumford@juniata.edu) library director, addressed the topic "Libraries and Technology," to a group of Juniata College Emeriti at Westminster Woods Retirement Community in Huntingdon.

ANDY MURRAY, (andy.murray@juniata.edu) professor of peace and conflict studies and Director of the Baker Institute, along with wife Terri Murray, lecturer in music, performed a benefit concert in Palmyra, Pa. The concert raised $5,000 to help provide housing for the homeless in the Harrisburg area.

In February, Murray, presented a workshop on Peace, Faith and the Academic Community at the 1996 Jubilee Conference in Pittsburgh. Jubilee is an ecumenical gathering of more than 2,000 college and university students from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

He also visited Westminster College to consult with a group of faculty who are beginning a Peace Studies Program. While there, he preached at their weekly chapel service.

DOUG GLAZIER, (doug.-glazier@juniata.edu) professor of biology, recently co-authored a research paper with Dr. Alberto Basset of the Universita' di Cagliari, Cagliari, Italy. "Resource limitation and intraspecific patterns of weight x length variation among spring detritivores" was published in Hydrobiologia (vol. 316, pp. 127-137). The paper is based on research done while Dr. Basset was a Fulbright Fellow at Juniata College during the fall of 1993.

He also presented a paper and chaired a session in aquatic biology at the 72nd Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science at the Nittany Lion Inn, University Park, Pa., on April 13th. The paper was co-authored with four Juniata students (David Ehasz '95, Amy Nulton '96, Susan Lasher '95 and Beth Sparks '95), and was titled "An energetic explanation for why the amphipod Gammarus minus is absent from acidic softwater springs." Doug's undergraduate research program has also received attention in an article on "Undergraduate Research Environmental Science Envioronmental Science Education" that appeared in the March 1996 issue of the Council on Undergraduate Research Quarterly (vol 16 pp. 150-156).

CHUCK YOHN, (chuck.yohn-@juniata.edu) director of the Raystown Field Station, presented a talk titled "Conservation of Tropical Forests and Biodiversity" at a conference on "Maintaining Biodiversity: the Essence of Intelligent Tinkering" at Shippensburg University on March 13, 1996. DOUG GLAZIER, professor of biology, and 12 Juniata College students also attended the conference.

RUSSELL SHELLEY, russell.shelley@juniata.edu) instructor in music, has been elected president of the Pennsylvania Collegiate Choral Association (PCCA). With an institutional membership of 23 Colleges/Universities, PCCA focuses its attention on sponsoring an annual collegiate choral festival each fall semester.

In addition, Prof. Shelley has been appointed Central Region Chair of the American Choral Directors Association - Pennsylvania Division. With 749 active members, ACDA-PA sponsors a three-day professional development choral directing convention each summer.

GRACE FALA, (grace.fala@juniata.edu) assistant professor of communication, was the invited respondent for a panel on "Constructing Gender Identities" at the International Communication Association conference in Santa Fe.

Dr. Fala conducted a series of four ninety-minute workshops on "Health Communication" and one on "Communication Care" at J.C. Blair Memorial Hospital in Huntingdon. She attended a seminar in State College on Alternative Methods of Healing in preparation for her work at the hospital. Last summer, she taught her course on Communicating Diversity at Penn State University's Harrisburg, Williamsport, and Great Valley campuses.

Last fall she attended a conference on "Sisterly Conversations" at the Kirkridge Retreat Center in Bangor, Pa.; led a weekend retreat called, "A Courage to Communicate" also at Kirkridge; and presented a paper on "Hillary Clinton: Images of a Woman with Power" at the Speech Communication Association of Pennsylvania (SCAP) in Pittsburgh. She currently holds a position on the executive board of SCAP as Public Address Interest Council Chair.

In February of 1996, Dr. Fala presented her research on "Empowerment: Aim High for Leadership Among Women" at Penn State University's AIM High Program for high school girls. In April she presented a paper on "My Parents Would Rather See Me Dead Than Queer: Coming Out to the Family." She also chaired a panel on "Figures of Speech & Figures of Thought" at the Eastern Communication Association Conference in New York. This summer, she taught two graduate courses for Penn State at the University Park, Harrisburg and Abington campuses.

Last October at the Speech Communication Association of Pennsylvania, DONNA WEIMER, (donna.weimer@juniata.edu) associate professor of communication, fulfilled many of her responsibilities as member of the Executive Board and Member at Large. She managed registration for the convention and chaired the Undergraduate and Graduate Student Panel of Competitive Papers. She was also a respondent on the panel, "Variations in View Points Surrounding the Issue of Profanity and Obscenity." Currently she is coordinating the Writing Competition for next year's convention. As a member of the Board of Representatives to WPSU-WP-SX, public broadcasting, Dr. Weimer attended meetings held in October and February. At the May meeting, she chaired the Community Needs subcommittee.

Going for Gold at QVC

aren Fonner may not have had as prominent a part in the 1996 Atlanta Summer Olympics as, maybe, Carl Lewis, but, to cable shopping aficionados, hers was nonetheless a gold medal performance.

A 1986 Juniata graduate in marketing and communications, Fonner played the pivotal role in Olympic product purchasing for QVC, cable television's premier home shopping network.

When QVC secured its spot as "the official electronic retailer of the 1996 Atlanta Summer Olympics," station executives turned to seven-year veteran, Fonner, as the principal product buyer for the 17 days of "1996 Olympic Summer Games Showcase" programming. She then planned, managed, and executed the two-hour shows.

As a buyer, Fonner focused on forming strategic alliances with retailers interested in showcasing merchandise during QVC's Olympic programming. That involved traveling to various companies throughout the United States, particularly those involved in sporting goods like Champion, Starter, and Logo Athletic. There, she met with managers to promote the benefits that QVC offers and to strike deals on purchasing merchandise to sell to viewers. Also, by establishing a strategic alliance with Coca-Cola, QVC was able to secure coveted broadcasting space for live on-site coverage during the Olympics.

"In the past, I had never worked on a project of this size or nature," Fonner said. "This was a major undertaking. But, QVC saw it as an opportunity to capitalize on a major event. I was asked to drop everything and focus on the Olympics."

The hope is that QVC and retailers both benefit from the venture.

"During my trips, I was able to talk about what QVC offers," Fonner said, "and I think that helped legitimize QVC in the eyes of a lot of business people. Most companies viewed working with QVC as smart business. If you're not familiar with the facts, you might think QVC has a limited, low-income audience. But, our demographic is incredible. The average income of our viewers is $60,000, and we attract people who earn up to $150,000 a year."

While skeptics said QVC would never be successful in the increasingly competitive cable television market, the station has grown remarkably since its inception 10 years ago. In her seven years at QVC, the station has blossomed from a 112 million dollar company into a company that made 1.6 billion dollars in retail sales in 1995.

"When I started, QVC was still relatively new and in its early stages," Fonner said. "There were a lot of doubters. I had been working at Macy's and when I left, people there said I was crazy. They said QVC was a fad and that it would never last. But I've been here seven years now and it's grown into a multi-billion dollar company. We're the No. 1 cable shopping network in profitability, volume, and customer satisfaction."

The nature of Fonner's job has changed with QVC's success. Just as Fonner did with her Olympic project, the station's buyers, in general, put an increased emphasis on strategic alliances with major corporations now. Those dealings have helped provide increased profitability.

Fonner credits her undergraduate training at Juniata for much of her professional success at QVC.

"People said I was taking a risk when I took this job, but it was a calculated risk," Fonner said. "There's something to be said about taking a calculated risk, and I think that's inborn at Juniata. You're taught to get out of the box and take calculated risks. If you're smart about those calculated risks, they can work out just great for you.

"At Juniata, I took a lot of marketing courses, the traditional HOBO and OFA organizational courses, the two Dr. Cherry courses, and the best course for me was crisis management because QVC is a dynamic organization," Fonner added. "We broadcast live, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and with that lind of demanding schedule comes a lot of stress. If Juniata offers a course in stress management, I would take it."

SUSAN BARKER-HILDEBRANDT '83

a first team volleyball All-America pick as a senior in 1982, when she also earned NCAA all-region tournament honors. A two-time All-MAC selection, she was team MVP as a junior. She later served as an assistant volleyball coach at Juniata.

GREY BERRIER '64

a standout football and baseball player. He was First-Team All-MAC at end twice and a second-team pick as a sophomore. He was selected the team's most valuable lineman in 1962. He led the team in receiving in 1962 and 1963. As a punter, he still ranks sixth on Juniata's all-time chart with a 34.8 yard career punting average.

CYRUS '29 & ISABELLE (DECEASED) CAULTON '29

have both been special supporters of athletics, particularly volleyball, at Juniata College.

JOE CORADETTI '73

a football and track star. His nine interceptions during his senior season was a school record at the time and is currently fourth on Juniata's all-time list. He is also fourth on Juniata's all-time career interception chart with 17 picks. In track, he helped set a pair of school records in relay events and ran on the MAC mile relay championship team in 1973, when he also won the MAC 440 hurdles and long jump titles.

MIKE DZVONAR '50

an AP Third Team All-State halfback in 1948 and the secondleading scorer in the state in 1949. Currently ranks fifth in scoring and career rushing yards at Juniata. Also, a three-year letterwinner in baseball.

ARNOLD "DOC" GREENE [COACH] (DECEASED)

remains the only Juniata basketball coach to post 100 career victories. His best squad came in 1953-54 with a 15-6 record. He coached basketball for 12 seasons and baseball for one season.

ED GREGA '41 (DECEASED)

a Little All-America Honorable Mention in football in 1938. He was also a member of the basketball team for three years.

NANCY ROACH GURDAK '83

a three-sport standout. She was a key contributor as a freshman on the outstanding women's basketball team in 1979-80, which advanced to the quarterfinals of the AIWA Division III National Tournament. She helped set two school relay records in track and field. She also ran cross country at Juniata.

STEVE LACH '81

a MAC Northern Division First Team selection in football for three consecutive years. As a senior co-captain, he was named to the ECAC All-East Southern Region. He led the team in interceptions for three straight seasons. He ranks eighth on Juniata's all-time career interception list with 13. He was the team's most valuable back in 1979. He has been the secondary coach at Juniata for the last 14 years.

JOE PASKILL '80

a two-time MAC champion in wrestling and the school's all-time victory leader with a 70-15-3 record. He won the MAC title at 150 pounds in 1978 and again in 1979, when he posted a 22-4 record and earned NCAA All-America honors with a sixth-place finish at the Division III national championships.

BOB SILL '59

an AP All-State Third Team selection in football as a sophomore, when the team went to the Tangerine Bowl. As a sophomore, he was second in the state in total rushing. He was honorable mention All-MAC as a senior.

MIKE SNIDER '26 [COACH, ADMINISTRATOR] (DECEASED)

had a long association with Juniata as a player, coach, and athletic director. He was a guard on the 1924-25 men's basketball team. He coached football, basketball, track, and cross country. He retired in 1968.

WALT VANDERBUSH '56

led the men's basketball team in rebounding for four straight seasons (1952-56). He ranks second in career rebounds (884) and ninth in scoring (1,124) at Juniata. Still holds the single-game school record with 33 rebounds against Dickinson in 1955.

GEORGE WEBER '40 (DECEASED)

an all-conference basketball player in 1940, a member of Juniata's winning relay team which brought in the Rodman Wanamaker Cup in 1938 and won the Penn Relays in 1938-39, and a four-year football player who was a team captain in 1940.

MEL WENGER '35

a three-sport standout at Juniata. He led the men's basketball team in scoring as a junior and senior. He was a four-year letterwinner in football at quarterback. He also earned three letters in tennis.

The 1996 Juniata College Sports Hall of Fame Class includes 16 inductees, spanning 50 years of athletics at the college. The second annual hall of fame class will be inducted Saturday, November 2. The banquet is scheduled for Ellis Hall, beginning with a reception at 6 p.m. and followed by the awards dinner at 7 p.m. Tickets for the event will not go on sale until September. Ticket prices will also be released in the near future.

KATHARINE V. CHILCOTE is 85 years young, retains a sharp mind and a wonderful sense of humor. She is proud of her college affiliation and sends her best wishes. She resides in Denver, Colorado.

ELEANOR (SHOEMAKER) FITCH was presented with the 1996 Outstanding Woman of the Year award by the Blair County branch of the American Association University Women.

'37 WILLIAM E. SWIGART,

JR. and his wife, Patricia, were among seven individuals, organizations and businesses honored by the Allegheny Mountain Convention and Visitors Bureau. The Swigarts, the operators of Swigart's Museum, were presented the Ambassador Award.

'42

CLYDE A. PENTZ and EDWIN H. MOYER enjoyed a reunion in Florida in March, getting caught up on the past 54 years. They had not seen each other since graduation day in 1942. The Moyers were vacationing in Florida and worshipped at the First Presbyterian Church in Fort Lauderdale, where Clyde sings in the 80-member choir. Clyde and Ed were both members of Juniata's "Screwball Breakfast Club."

RICHARD C. COFFMAN was elected for his eleventh consecutive year as president of the Huntingdon County Thrift Corporation.

LISA (SAVINO) EMERSON, of Incline Village, IV, and her family purchased a restaurant, The Christmas Tree, in August of 1995. Lisa, also known as Mrs. Christmas, based on her love of all things festive, has found the perfect yearround home for her abundant Christmas ornaments.

REX W. and DOROTHY (LEHMAN) HERSHBERGER spent four weeks in Nigeria in January and February, 1996. The compulsion for their trip was to share with their family, KIMBER (HERSH-BERGER) '75 and GLENN A. MITCHELL '75 and their children, Brenton and Rebekah. The experience was challenging and enlightening; challenging because it forced them to let go of their own conveniences and ways of thinking; enlightening as they learned a new culture, lived in a tropical climate and interrelated with Nigerians, Swiss, and Germans. Rex and Dottie joined a group of international work campers. Their work project was to build an eight foot high wall around the compound where their family resided while in Nigeria. They found it difficult to build a wall to keep out undesirable people when Juniata emphasizes taking down walls.

GERY F. POURBAIX says "Hello from France!" His address is 27 Rue Du General Leclerc, 80400 HAM, France. Gery attended Juniata in his junior year as an exchange student in 1985-86.

FIRST ASIAN PARENTS GATHERING

During a recent trip to Asia, William Helz of the Juniata International Programs Office was hosted during his three-day stay in Chengdu, China, by the families of Juniata's five Chinese students and by the parents of Juniata Computer Science professor Dr. Fengman Zhang, in Chengdu, China. A group dinner hosted by the parents during his visit is believed to be the first Juniata gathering of its kind in Asia and provides indication of Juniata's growing internationalization.

During the past academic year, international representation in Juniata's student body increased to more than 6 percent, with 72 international students in residence on the Juniata campus. Juniata's 1995-96 international students come from 33 different countries and speak 21 native languages.
